

Name of the initiative: Modern teaching methods

Originators: Independent work, social activist - Ramallah

Guidance: Muneer Fares- Field coordinator- Injaaz Inst. - Ramallah

Direct Target Audience: Graduates of colleges of education-
Female teachers

Number of participants: 5

Number of meetings: 3

Date: 8.6.2015- 10.6.2015

Location of meetings: Sawa institute

Goals of the initiative: Develop teaching mechanisms where the student is a partner in producing knowledge in the learning process and not only at the receiving end of it.

1. Create ways where the student is at the center of the learning process
2. develop ways in which the student lies at the center of the education process.
3. Create a learning space without the school cognitive

The idea of the initiative:

The initiative in its core is based on training. The initiative will discuss, in collaboration with a team of new graduates from teacher colleges and new teachers in the field of education, teaching methods that will enable creating a new space where a student is a partner in the learning process and in creating knowledge, not only a receiver, through the use of creative working means. An important part of this learning space is it should be interactive.

Documentation mechanisms:

Visual documentation where you can see how much the students are interacting with these new methods, and know how much are they benefiting from them by using evaluations to be determined later, that will measure how much are they benefiting and understanding from these methods.